John Colvin, Mark Colvin, Mrs. Mandy Wilson, John Hirshomus,

-The capital of Miller county makes no claims on the new administration, for although it could easily furnish a competent osbinet, since the "star rootes are under fire, and treasury officials are being investigated for buying lemonade and charging it to the government as candles, there is likely to be more profit in drug(!)stores, "blind tiger" and the like than in cabinet offices, few men can be found willing to desert their private business for the dangers, of public life. It, however, President Arthur, some evening, should drop in the City Drug Store and listen to the legal discussions, he would instinctive ly feel that the hour and the men, for filling the Attorney Genera's office and the vacancles on the Supreme Beach were, at least, at hand. He would be embarrassed only by the large number from which to select, like the man between two beautiful girls, slebbeg "how happy I could be with either were to'ther dear charmer away." And as those on whom the lot might fall are true hearted patriots who realise that the county needs the services of its wisest and bers, they could doubtless be persuaded, if the case were properly presented, to leave the profits of business, the rural quiet of Miller county and the joys of domestic life, for the labors the tumu t and the gilled temtations of official position at Washington.

It is stated in the eastern press that Baltimore is now recalving whole cargoes of esbbaga from Oldenburg, Germany, Kroubarrels in liberal quantities are also being shipped to the United States from the same place. The shortage of the cabbage crop. both in the cest and west, evidently affords room the present sesson for this new enter-prise. Cabbage and brout in St. Louis, at the present time, command double the usual prices, and the market is indebted to Chicago for all that is offered —Burst World.

It Eakes So Difference.

The editor of a country newspaper, pub-Hahed in Illinois, devoted to hare money and hard times, determined to publish the Democratic and Republican platforms. In making up the types the foreman, by mistake, placed the line "Rapublican Piatform" at the head of the Democratic Diatform, and the line "Democratic Piatform" over the Republican. The "mistake" was not discovered until about three-fourths of the edition has been printed, when the foremen, as pale as a ghost and trembling from head to foot, en-tared the editorial executes and pointed out the frightful "error." The man of the quilt acousted his glasses and read both over cars rouly. When he had finished he said, "Go ahead, Jack, and finish the edition. There is not a bit of difference between them except the headings."—Irish World.
